

Jim is the CEO of the Inc. CEO Project and helps leaders grow companies. He specializes in the issues that fast growth firms experience in their business models, talent, processes and systems as they reach higher levels of performance. Jim and his team work with over 100 CEOs of high growth companies to identify and obliterate the things that stand between them and continued organizational success.

With 30 years of leadership in business, he brings experience in leading global organizations in both public and private environments across many functional areas to the table. He has been quoted in the New York Times, Time, Huffington Post and National Public Radio. His ideas have been translated into 9 languages and he has done business in over 27 countries.

Jim Schleckser is the author of the best selling published book, "Great CEOs are Lazy", detailing the behaviors that make the difference in CEO performance. You can get more information at www.GreatCEOsAreLazy.com

His insight is sought by dozens of CEOs of growth companies around the country. If you want straight, strategic advice on your business problem - you have found your guy.

He has a degree in Chemical Engineering from the University of Delaware and an MBA in Marketing and Finance from the University of Connecticut.

He serves on the board of Defenders as the Chair of Talent & Compensation and previously as the Chair of Governance and Nominating. He also serves on the board of Daniel Defense and Youth with a Mission - San Pedro, DR. He has previously served on the board of Hanover Research.

He is a soccer player, Cross Fitter, prolific reader and outdoorsman. He resides in Potomac, Maryland.