

Brent Stewart, Sr

Director, President & CEO, United Way of Greater Kansas City

Director - Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, Urban Neighborhood Initiative, Kansas City Crime Commission, City Year Kansas City, Workforce Development Board, Heartland Chapter of National Association of Corporate Directors

---

As President & CEO of the United Way of Greater Kansas City – Kansas City, Missouri he uses innovative, collaborative approaches as he works with donors, community partner, staff, and volunteers to strengthen United Way’s effectiveness as a promoter of long-term solutions for community problems. Brent joined the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City’s Board of Directors in 2016.

Brent has almost thirty years of experience in the United Way system, previously as president of the United Way of Columbia-Willamette, serving the Portland/Vancouver region, United Way of Snohomish County, and as president of United Way of Greater Battle Creek. He also served as vice president for resource development for United Way of Westchester and Putnam Counties in White Plains, New York.

A community leader with diverse interests, he has volunteered his time with a full range of nonprofit and community initiatives that have added to the greater quality of community life, in each of those communities, he was known for working with community partners in creating strategic plans that helped those United Ways become more effective in addressing and solving community problems.

Brent earned a Master’s degree in regional planning from Pennsylvania State University and a B.A. in political science from Howard University. He has additional training from the National Academy for Voluntarism and Harvard Business School – Strategic Perspective in Nonprofit Management.