

KATINA DORTON

Senior Financial Executive/Chief Financial Officer with more than 20 years of Wall Street investment banking experience advising corporate clients and their Boards of Directors on capital markets, fund raising, mergers and acquisitions and other strategic transactions. Significant life sciences industry expertise in capital raising, financing strategies, value creation and investor relationships. Experienced CFO in life sciences and strategic advisor to numerous companies in life sciences, medical devices and healthcare with significant experience with emerging life sciences companies. Strong track record of leading these companies through successful IPOs, financings, strategic growth initiatives and M&A. Led the execution of over 60 completed financing transactions raising $50B in equity and debt, including 25 IPOs, and advised on dozens of M&A and other strategic transactions. Strong corporate law background with several years of experience as M&A and securities attorney. Experienced public company corporate board member with board leadership experience, including Lead Director, Governance Committee Chair and Audit Committee experience.

Katina is currently Chief Financial Officer of AVROBIO, a company developing gene therapy for rare diseases based in Cambridge, MA. Katina spent 12 years of her career at Morgan Stanley, where she was a Managing Director in Investment Banking. She later was Managing Director, Life Sciences, at Needham & Co, a boutique investment bank. Prior to her role at Morgan Stanley, Katina practiced law in mergers and acquisitions at Sullivan & Cromwell.

She is Lead Director of the Board of Directors of US Ecology, a NASDAQ listed company, that provides environmental services to industrial companies and government. Katina chairs the Governance Committee and serves as a member of the Audit Committee at US Ecology. She is also a Board member at Easter Seals UCP-North Carolina & Virginia, a $100 revenue generating business that provides healthcare services on not-for-profit basis, and a Board Member of the Triangle Chapter of the National Association of Corporate Directors.

Katina has a BA from Duke, an MBA from George Washington University and a JD from the University of Virginia. She is a member of the National Association of Corporate Directors and is an NACD Corporate Governance Fellow.

917-576-1551

Katinad7@gmail.com